In the meeting, James told me to make the website sophisticated and classic. He drew inspiration from restaurant websites and wanted images that would showcase the visuals of tea. He wants it to be informative and maintain a voice reminiscent of traditional Chinese elements. He suggested I have a main navigation linked to other pages, and encouraged the use of Chinese calligraphy.

In our meeting, I asked Jane to make a website that was bold and evocative of Kusama's work. I wanted her to showcase Kusama's artwork through large, expressive imagery. The feel of the website should be immediately linked to Kusama's work. In addition, it should be fun, energetic, and colorful.
